CANADIAN VS. NORTHERN.

Public Opinion Tending to a Settlement of the Question.

Decision on the Injunction will be Delivered Monday—Fault Found with the Attorney-General for not Notifying the C. P. R. of the Intention to Cross Their Lines.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27.—Argument on the second injunction case occupied all day yesterday, and was concluded late this afternoon. Messrs. Aikens and Erwart, for the plaintiffs, claimed that in any case the Dominion had power to legislate with reference to the crossing of Dominion lines by provincial railways. Further, that the railway commissioner had no power himself to enter upon the construction of a railway; that all he could do was to let a contract which would have to be approved by his government. It was further shown that the N. P. & M. rolling stock was used for work on the Portage extension. There seems to be a doubt that the Northern Pacific are the real builders of the Portage extension, and if this can be proven the injunction will probably be continued. The opinion seems to be that evidence on this point is wanting, and that the injunction will again be dissolved. The decision of the judge will be given on Monday at eleven o'clock.

The C.P.R. are still guarding the crossing at Morris and St. James, and will offer resistance until the Supreme Court decides the case. Fault is found with the Attorney-General for not even notifying the C.P.R. of the intention to cross their lines.

The Free Press editorially says:—"The C.P.R.'s rights in this case are secured to them by the General Railway Act of the province, which are enjoyed by all other railway companies in Canada, and coming under the legislative authority of the Dominion parliament. If the Grand Trunk was substituted for the C. P. R., the difficulty would be precisely the same. Parliament prescribes certain formulas which must be observed by all companies—Dominion or local—when crossing railways. The whole dispute consists in the C.P.R. insisting that those formalities shall be observed."

Public opinion is tending in the direction of a settlement of the question by the Supreme Court, when no doubt all resistance to the crossing will be removed.

EMMA ABBOTT COMING.

A Brilliant Operatic Season by Her Great English Opera Company in Victoria.

It will indeed be pleasurable news to our citizens to learn that the Emma Abbott Grand English Opera company will again visit Victoria, playing four nights at The Victoria, commencing Monday, Nov. 5. Our music lovers and society folk will recall the visit of the charming and gifted prima donna to this city two years ago, remembering the brilliancy of the performances, the artistic manner in which this sterling company produced the best works of the greatest composers, raising all to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. On this occasion Emma Abbott will be accorded even a more brilliant reception, for the memory of her great artistic abilities and true womanly qualities have always been warmly cherished in the hearts of the people of Victoria.

Her company has been pronounced the largest and most complete operatic organization giving grand opera in English in America to-day, and the prima donna promises us one of the greatest musical treats in local annals. Since the last appearrnce of this renowned lyrical company here quite a number of eminent artistes have been added to the galaxy of silver-tongued singers, who have heretofore surrounded Emma Abbott, while the chorus and grand orchestra have been largely augmented, and strengthened artistically, so that the ensemble is characterized as the most brilliant ever heard in English opera. The famous diva has added force and dramatic power to a voice that was always pure and sweet, and characterized by that wondrous charm of melody that appeals to the human heart. During the summer she passed a season of study under Marchesi and other eminent masters in Paris, her object being to develop to the full that beautiful gift of song which was bestowed on her, so that now her notes sound like liquid silver, —fresh as the dewdrop and pure as the dawn.

The strong coterie of artists who are associated with her cannot be equalled in any organization in this country in point of true artistic merit and operatic experience, so that her support forms a most brilliant setting for the fair prima donna herself, who continues to work with an enthusiasm and energy born of tireless ambition, and a physical strength that never relaxes. The organization of her company this season was entirely and personally superintended by herself, and all rehearsals have been conducted by Signor Tomasi, the eminent director, who achieved such a brilliant reputation in London. The Abbott chorus this season is said to be, as a consequence, one of the most perfect choral organizations that has yet been organized on the modern lyric stage. Among the leading artistes with the company are Lizzie Annandale, the famous contralto, the two renowned tenors, Montegriffo and Michelena, who will be heard here in their greatest roles. William Pruette, the great baritone, and William Broderick, the magnificent basso, are also doing good work. So also is Walter Allen, the unrivalled comedian. James Abdill, a new tenor, and Vina Bertini, a young, beautiful, and accomplished prima donna soprano, while Bertha Fricke and Myra Mirella are two new and gifted candidates for public favor.

The operas to be produced in Victoria at The Victoria theatre have been most judiciously selected, and comprise the choicest melodic gems in Emma Abbott's extensive repertoire. On Monday night Emma Abbott will sing the grand role of "Leonora" in Verdi's beautiful opera, "Il Trovatore," with the support of the entire company. Tuesday night "The Rose of Castile" will be given. This opera is by Balfe, the composer of "The Bohemian Girl," but by reason of the exacting requirements of the score, and the elaborate costuming, it has been but rarely given in America. The high artistic standard of the Abbott Opera Company, as well as the magnificent wardrobe secured by the great Diva during the summer, enable Emma Abbott to give this truly beautiful opera with a completeness of detail and fidelity to the composer's ideal that make the production one of the greatest musical feasts that has yet been presented on the lyric stage. The opera is a story of romantic love in Spain in the days of chivalry, and it is clothed in bright sparkling music, fully as beautiful and appealing to the heart and finer sentiments with the same power, as the familiar numbers of the "Bohemian Girl." On Wednesday night the "Bohemian Girl," with Emma Abbott as "Arline", will be revived, thus giving our opera opera goers an opportunity of contrasting the beauties of these two matchless works of the great composer. The closing performance on Thursday night will be Gounod's grand masterpiece "Faust", with Emma Abbott in her ideal impersonatian of "Marguerite", a character in which the personality of the great diva is lost in a magnificent conception of the hapless maiden who lives, breathes, loves and dies before an enwrapt audience moved to tears of sympathy by this majestic picture of human passion, weakness and despair, in a wonderful musical setting. The entire company will appear in support of the great prima donna at this and all other performances of the engagement.

The sale of season tickets only will begin Tuesday, Oct. 30th, at M. W. Waite & Co's, and continue one day. No single ticket will be sold until Wednesday, Oct. 31st, when the regular sale of tickets for every performance will begin and continue up to the date of the engagement.

PARNELL VS. "THE TIMES."

Continuation of the Case in the Scottish Courts.

Arguments of Counsel—"The Times" Maintains that the Action is An Attempt of Parnell to Avoid Full Enquiry By the Commission.

(Special to THE COLONIST.)

EDINBURGH, Oct. 27.—In the court of sessions the case of Parnell against the London Times was again called. Strachan and Balfour, Parnell's counsel, moved that a closure of the record of proof be allowed. Mr. Murray, counsel for the Times, moved that the question of jurisdiction in this case be sent for determination to the procedure roll. The prosecution had made many alterations in their complaint. They had deleted all reference to the statement that Parnell had supplied Brice with money to enable him to escape justice, and it was no longer alleged that the statement was false, untrue and malicious. The judge thereupon said this left the record with only one question. Mr. Murray said he wanted the question of jurisdiction to go to the procedure roll, because no relavent averment as to jurisdiction had been made. He said that where the defendant's statements were not proven they were made a simple denial. The prosecution had taken no notice of the two averements concerning English law. Mr. Strachan replied that the only question of English law involved referred to the summons taken out of England. Attorney-General Webster, continued Strachan, spoke in the O'Donnell trial on the instructions which the Times had given him, but the Times had editorially adopted the attorney-general's

ALLEGED SLANDERS.

The court then granted the motion of plaintiff's counsel that the record be closed. Mr. Murray said the only publication averred in the complaints was that copies of the Times had been mailed to persons in Scotland. This averment he contended was irrelevant. The prosecution, he further said, claimed the right under the registration act to certain funds which he was clear the act gave them no right to. The judge decided to send the case to the procedure room for a decision on the various points submitted. The Times' record maintains the whole of its charges. It says that the action is an attempt on the part of Mr. Parnell to by the Parnell commission as to the sole question of the genuineness of the letters. The defendants do not rely on the letters for proof of their statements, which are equally true even if the letters were not signed as purported. On the day before the summons in this case was issued the prosecution secured the issuance from the court of Queen's bench of a writ in an action for libel for £5,000. As that action is pending other proceedings with respect to the same matter are by English law barred. The publication of the Attorney-General's statement in the O'Donnell action and a fair report of the proceedings were privileged by English law. Therefore no action can be taken. The Times' articles, it is alleged, were a fair comment. Therefore the defendants should be acquitted. The prosecution's statements are declared to be irrevelant and insufficient to support an action.

HON. EDWARD BLAKE

Arrives in Victoria, Accompanied by His Two Sons—Delighted with the C. P. R. —Too Cloudy to View the "Sea of Mountains."

Hon. Edward Blake, accompanied by his two sons, arrived by the Yosemite last evening and registered at the Driard.

A COLONIST representative called upon the distinguished gentleman during the evening and found him apparently in good health. Evidently the overland trip has had no unpleasant effects upon him. In reply to a query of the reporter, Mr. Blake said that he had enjoyed his trip very much. He travelled by day only and had therefore a good opportunity of studying the country.

"What do you think of the C. P. R., Mr. Blake?"

"It's a very good road," was the reply.

"And the scenery?"

"It is magnificent."

"And the 'sea of mountains'?"

"Is there a sea of mountains?" enquired the veteran politician with a smile.

"I have heard so.

"I have been most emphatically told that there was not," replied Mr. Blake with another pleasant smile. "I had a very poor view of the Selkirks. The weather was not at all agreeable. The trip from Vancouver here was the most unpleasant of all. It was raining all the time."

Mr. Blake will remain in Victoria today and to-morrow, seeing all that is to be seen. He will then return east, taking time to look about him and stopping off at Banff, Brandon, Winnipeg, and other important places on the line. This is Mr. Blake's first visit to the west, a visit long contemplated but long delayed owing to the fact that his time has been heretofore so completely occupied by business.

Queen Natalie's Divorce Likely to Lead to Trouble and the Dethronement of King Milan.

Bismarck Playing False to the Czar--France's Opportunity May Come Sooner Than Expected.

The Condition of the King of Holland Exciting Alarm--Arranging for His Successor.

(Copyrighted by the U. P. A.)

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The aspect of affairs in Europe has again suddenly shifted, and even the most pronounced optimists see difficulties in the situation which they admit will tax the ingenuity of the leading statesmen of the central powers to overcome in order to maintain peace during the winter months. A reliable correspondent telegraphs to-day from St. Petersburg via Vienna that the massing of Russian troops on a large scale on the German-Austrian frontiers during the past week was really a demonstration to deter King Milan, of Servia, from divorcing Queen Natalie. The divorce of the Servian King from his Russian wife will undoubtedly lead to serious trouble, involving in which case his son will be declared king and a regency appointed during his minority. The latter event may possibly be accompanied by a bloodless revolution similar to the one which caused the abdication of Prince Alexander, of Bulgaria. The effect of the divorce in Russia has been to stimulate the hopes of the war party, who are now rapidly gaining the ascendency.

Copious articles are appearing in the Russian press regarding the effectiveness of the Austrian and Italian armies, alleging that both are divided among themselves, the former having a majority among the rank and file, who thoroughly hate the Germans, while the Italian troops, they say, cannot be relied upon to fight alongside of the Germans as against French troops. Statistics of the heterogeneous population of the Austro-Hungarian empire and the condition of its internal affairs are given, showing that in the event of war with a foreign power, and especially with Russia, that the dual empire would soon be the scene of several rebellions among her different nationalities which would sorely tax her whole army to subdue.

Simultaneously with the progress of Emperor William through Germany come reports of the rapidly in France. Even the Paris correspondent of the Londan Times, who has been in the habit of scouting Boulanger, assumes it to be probably that the general will come back from the general election with a large majority, composed of Bonapartists, Orleanists, Legitimists and adventurers of all kinds. To Europe at large the danger of such a state of things is infinitely increased by the Servian episode, which has undoubtedly ruptured the entente cordiale between Germany and Russia as indicated by the announcement that the Czar's proposed trip to Berlin has been abandoned already. Semi-official Russian newspapers claim that the German chancellor is playing false to the Czar and France's opportunity may come sooner than was recently expected, now that the oternal eastern question develops a new dangerous emergency.

The refusal of the German government to aid the German Emin Pasha commission has not dampened the latter's ardor but has merely caused the postponement of the expedition until better news comes from the Zanzibar coast where the German colony is still experiencing considerable trouble. Whether under existing circumstances the east coast route would not be even more difficult than the Congo route which Stanley selected is extremely doubtful. It is now admitted that is not merely to find Emin. It is also to do pioneer work for the German colonists beyond the coasts and the lakes. But if this were attempted at the present moment the expedition would encounter all the hostility which is being displayed by the natives towards the German colonists in the territory conceded by the Sultan of Zanzibar. While the expedition waits something may possibly be heard of Emin and Stanley. At the office of the English Emin relief commission the belief prevails that Emin and Stanley are together. The statement is made that they really expected very little from the German expedition as the want of capacity of the Germans to succeed where Bartellot failed is shown by their absurd quarrel with the natives on the coast. Recently returned German travellers in speaking of the difficulties of the German East African Company are candid enough to say that they were caused by officials of the company, who imagine they can reform the barbarous races by the unbending and almost brutal methods of Prussian policemen. If English travellers were to advance this theory, it would be ascribed to brutish jealousy.

The frequent telegrams regarding the health of the King of Holland are regarded by those who may be supposed to know the facts, as to some extent concealing the truth that his majesty's condition is most serious. The Queen of Holland and the Dutch ministers, in the event of are naturally anxious that everything relating to the proclamation of the young princess should be well arranged. The late Queen had in Charles Villiers, the venerable member for Wolverhampton, a valued and constant correspondent. The present Queen has practically no acquaintance with English society and is likely to lean to the wish of many of her friends and family that when Princess Wilhelmina approaches a marriageable age she will be betrothed to a German prince. Some Dutch statesmen, however, are already casting their eyes toward the younger branches of the English royal family, preferring that in years to come the consort of the Queen of Holland should be an English prince.

The friends of Malietoa, the deposed king of Samoa, are in strong hope of restoring him to his dignity now that his successor Tomasse has, in his turn, come to grief. His Majesty rejoices in a legal representative, Mr. Rees, who is now in this country doing his best to bring the wrongs and claims of his client before the English people. Mr. Rees, who was formerly a member of the New Zealand parliament, has an article on the

in the November number of the Nineteenth Century, wherein he draws attention to the failure of the projected Samoan conference between Great Britain, Germany and the United States. Mr. W. McArthur, M. P., who has made the subject his own in the house of commons, is in possession of much interesting information in reference to this failure, and he intends to find an opportunity of discussing it when the estimates are before the house in November.

An influential committee of Anglo-Indians has been appointed to co-operate in London with the patriotic association that has been started in India by Sir Syed Ahmed and other leading Mahometan opponents of the national congress movement. The principal work of the organization is to counteract the active proceedings of the Indian political agency recently established in London in connection with the congress. So far as India itself is concerned the European community has taken no part in the agitation. The only overt opposition here to it having come from Mahometans who appear to be frightened by the superior numbers, intelligence and education of their Hindoo fellow subjects.

A COAL FAMINE.

Continuance of the Miners' Strike in Sydney.

Some of the Miners Working Under Police Protection—Expedients to Reduce the Demand for Coal—Steamers Burning Wood.

[Special to THE COLONIST.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—The steamer Alameda from Sydney reports a continuance of the coal miners' strike, with no present prospect of settlement. Some of the miners are working under police and military protection. Violence has been promptly repressed by the authorities. Various expedients are being tried to reduce the demand for coal. The Sydney Gas Company has appealed to its customers to use less gas, and is considering an increase in price. The steamship companies at Adelaide are making an experiment of burning wood instead of coal, so far with satisfactory results.

THE SACKVILLE BLUNDER.

Peremptory Demand Upon the Foreign Office for the Minister's Recall.

Lord Sackville Admits and Regrets Having Written the Obnoxious Letter—Telegrams Urging the Imperative Necessity for a Change in the British Ambassador at Washington.

(Special to THE COLONIST.)

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Sackville letter incident has caused considerable stir in diplomatic circles. Mr. Phelps, the United States minister, has gone to Lord Salisbury's country residence in Hertfordshire to see Lord Salisbury. He called first at the foreign office this morning, but finding the prime minister gone he immediately followed him to his country seat. It is said Lord Salisbury favors the retirement of Lord Sackville.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—This evening a very urgent cablegram was sent through Minister Phelps, making a premptory demand upon the British foreign office. The Star reporter could not learn with absolute certainty whether the demand was for Lord Sackville's recall or for his reprimand and an apology. That the demand was for his recall, is, however, believed to be the fact. Whatever action the administration has taken or may take in the matter it is safe to say it will be influenced by the belief on their part that Sackville was actuated by sinister motives. At the residence of the British legation this morning it was stated they had not succeeded in getting any further information as to who Mr. Murchison is. The Minister appeared to be still in doubt as to whether or not there was such a person.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Lord Salisbury still remains at Hatfield, whither several cablegrams from Lord Sackville have been forwarded, admitting and regretting his having written the obnoxious letter. Telegrams have also been forwarded to the premier from Secretary Bayard, urging, in view of the approaching presidential election, the imperative necessity for a change in the person of the British representative at Washington, in order to calm popular excitement. Minister Phelps and his wife proceeded to Hatfield House this afternoon, where they will remain until Monday. Phelps and Salisbury held a long conference in the library immediately after the former arrived. Mr. Phelps enlarged upon the necessity of prompt action in order to repair the disaster, and made a special point that by treating Murchison as a British subject; entitled to his advice despite the fact that he had stated he was a naturalized citizen of the United States, Lord Sackville had disregarded and violated the understanding of 1871, when Secretary Fish obtained England's recognition of the American doctrine of naturalization. Lord Salisbury admitted this was the most serious point of the view of Lord Sackville's conduct. The matter is made still more annoying to Lord Salisbury inasmuch as Sackville's appointment is attributed to the influence of his sister, the second wife of the late Marquis of Salisbury since married to the Earl of Derby.

Important to Working Men.

Artizans, mechanics and laboring men are liable to sudden accidents and injuries, as well as painful cords, stiff joints and lameness. To all thus troubled we would recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil, the handy and reliable pain cure for outward and internal use. tu-th-sat-dw

GOOD ADVICE.

The Hon. Mr. Chapleau, at the banquet given to him by the workingmen of Ottawa, did not flatter his hosts. He did not tell them that everything they did was right, and that the capitalists were always in the wrong. He did not say one word calculated to create ill-feeling between capital and labor—the employers and the employed. On the contrary, although he sympathised with the workingmen, he warned them against the teachings of the socialists and anarchists, who are doing so much mischief in the Old World and who are trying to create disturbances in the New, where they enjoy so many privileges, where the road to independence and distinction in every walk of life is as open to them as it is to those who possess what are generally considered greater advantages. What he said on this subject is well worth reproducing. "The laboring classes here," he said, "are not spoiled and are not poisoned by those doctrines which, unfortunately, in Europe have taken the shape of revolution. Thank God we are free from this dreadful plague, and I hope the anarchists and socialists will not cross the Canadian frontier now that they have landed in the United States. Let us limit our importation to the Knights of Labor, an organization calculated to do good, if whilst aiming at the benefits which they desire to secure for themselves, they are careful about the rights of other people." Mr. Chapleau probably did not know that in some parts of the Dominion there are men, not belonging to the working class, who to gratify personal spite or to gain political advantage, are doing their little best to disseminate the most mischievous of the doctrines of socialism—agitators who are stupidly trying to convince working men that the capitalists who supply the money to develope the resources of the country and to carry on the enterprises which give them work are their enemies who should be legislated against and driven out of public life. These socialists, we are ashamed to say, are not foreign importations but native Canadians, who, in order to attain their mean and petty ends, are ready to sow the seeds of social revolution. They have the foolishness of children who in a carpenter's shop play with matches, without their innocence. No language that Mr. Chapleau could use would be strong enough to condemn the conduct of such unprincipled mischief-makers. Mr. Chapleau warned his hearers against strikes. "The best remedy against strikes, that curse of the laboring classes," this recognised champion of the workingmen said, (or necessary as they may sometimes appear to be), the best remedy against strikes, I say, a remedy far superior to any tribunal that may be devised to settle the difficulties between the employer and his men, is the interest of the latter in the small capital built up by his energy and his economy, which a prolonged strike might impair." This, then, is the cure which a true friend of the workingman would prescribe for strikes. He would make him—what some who have constituted themselves his educators would have him regard with horror and hatred—a capitalist. He would convert every intelligent, sober, and saving laboring man into a monster who is so utterly wicked as to have a house and garden of his own, shares in mines and factories, and, it may be, money in the bank to lend to those who want to use it in sinking shafts, cutting timber, catching fish, building factories, raising cattle, or any other enterprize which promises them a fair return for the capital invested and the labor employed. It is difficult to guess what the men in this town who are trying so hard to educate the working class in British Columbia up to socialism and communism and anarchism, will have to say to the statesman who proposes to increase the number of capitalists in the land. Boycotting would be too mild a punishment by far for so depraved a man. Dynamite, or some of the other rapid means of socialistic reformation ought to be used to silence a public teacher who proposes to allay labor discontent by encouraging the workers to save some money and become capitalists. If working men took Mr. Chapleau's advice and if they wished to settle all disputes, amicably, if they were as desirous to respect the rights of the capitalist as to assert their own, if they dreaded strikes and occupied themselves chiefly in trying to better their condition in a quiet peaceful way, if they no longer hated the capitalist, but strained every nerve to become capitalists themselves, what would become of the agitator? His occupation would be gone and he would be obliged to resort to some honest means of securing the objects of his ambition or starve. Well, the world can well spare the socialistic agitator.

MORE RETALIATION.

Our special telegram from San Francisco yesterday showed that the Chinese policy of the United States is producing its natural effect in China. There is a good deal of human nature about the Chinese. A Chinaman, like Shylock, speaking of the men of his despised race, might say, "Hath not a Chinaman eyes? hath not a Chinaman hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer, as an American man is? if you prick us, do we not bleed? if you tickle us, do we not laugh? if you poison us, do we not die? and if you wrong us, shall we not revenge?" It was not to be expected that when the United States excluded the Chinese from their territory the Chinese would not retaliate. It is not in human nature to do otherwise. The Americans cannot, in reason, when they drive Chinamen from their shores, even when those Chinamen are British subjects, complain if the Chinese determine not to permit United States citizens to live and do business in their territory. This is but the logical consequence of the policy they are pursuing. Before they passed their Chinese exclusion law they must have calculated upon being treated by the Chinese as they treat the Chinese. Non-intercourse with China is the inevitable result of such laws as the Congress of the United States passed the other day. The Americans may be willing to accept this result. They may think that it is cheap to get rid of the Chinese at any price. It would be injustice itself after having forbidden the Chinese to enter their country to resent their exclusion from China. In fact the Americans ought to sympathize with the indignant inhabitants of the Flowery Land, for they themselves have a great liking for retaliatory measures and do not scruple on the slightest provocation, or on no provocation at all, to resort to them. Although, according to the terms of a treaty, which they voluntarily entered into they renounced the right on the part of their fishermen to enter British harbors except for certain purposes, they threaten to retaliate when the British take them at their word and faithfully carry out the agreement. If they have cause to retaliate when required to do what they have solemnly promised to do, have not the Chinese still stronger reasons for retaliating when they are denied privileges extended to the people of every other country in the world. But we have a notion that the American will not quietly accept a Chinese decree of non-intercourse. There is money in the trade with the Chinese, and no matter how they treat the Chinese in their own country they will not readily forego the advantages of their trade with China.

A STUPID BLUNDER.

Baron Sackville's letter has created quite a stir in the United States. In one sense it was a very harmless letter, a letter that any one not a foreign ambassador might have written without evoking a single remark. But coming from the representative of Great Britain in Washington it was an exceedingly foolish letter, and calculated to do any amount of mischief. The British ambassador—to say nothing of the flagrant impropriety of a man in his position interfering, ever so indirectly, in the presidential contest—might have known that if his letter, innocent as it appeared, ever by any chance fell into the hands of politicians of the Republican party it would be used from one end of the United States to the other to Mr. Cleveland's prejudice. He knew that one of the accusations against him is that he is too favorable to Great Britain. He saw that the Republicans were taking the greatest pains to convince voters who were prejudiced against the British that in the fishery negotiations the President had, in order to curry favor with the English, sacrificed American interests. The observations which he was in a position to make, and which his letter shows he did make, should have impressed him with the necessity of being exceedingly cautious as to what he said or did with respect to the presidential election. One would think that knowing as much as he does about American politics and the ways of American politicians he would have suspected the very moment he read Mr. Murchison's letter that it was a trap set for him by Mr. Cleveland's opponents. He had the very best reason for declining to give any other answer to the letter than a mere acknowledgment of its receipt, yet in the face of the plainest dictates of both duty and prudence he fell into the snare that had been so clumsily set for him. This is another proof that the astuteness of diplomatists, like the skill of detectives, is for the most part imaginary. One would think that any man of common sense in Baron West's position would have refrained from giving his correspondent the advice he asked for. The consequences of his imprudence are exactly what might have been anticipated. His reply to the letter sent to entrap him is published in every newspaper in the United States and made the text of hundreds of insolent anti-British speeches and newspaper articles. The public of the United States are incited to feel indignant at British interference in the domestic affairs of the Republic. The letter is pointed to as confirmatory of all that had been said of the interest which Great Britain has in the return of the Republican candidate. If the British Ambassador is so desirous to have Mr. Cleveland elected as to write letters in his favor, it is but reasonable to conclude that British merchants and manufacturers who are deeply interested in the proposed tariff changes, would send across the Atlantic British gold to secure his election. The reader who knows how elections are carried on in the States, or in the Dominion for that matter, can see what use can be made of the British Ambassador's letter, coming, as it does, when the election excitement is at its height, and what influence it will have among the electors. It is said with much show of reason that Mr. Blaine lost his election four years ago on account of an unhappy phrase in a stupid speech of an enthusiastic supporter for whose utterances he was in no sense responsible, and it is more than likely that this letter of the British Ambassador will do Mr. Cleveland's election prospects as much harm as the Rum and Romanism speech of a fanatical clergyman did those of Mr. Blaine. If, as is threatened, Baron West's extraordinary indiscretion is followed by consequences most unpleasant to him personally, he need not expect much sympathy from those who believe that the prosperity of the people of the United States would be greatly advanced by the election of Mr. Cleveland.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE News-Advertiser having nothing to say against our suggestion that the third senator should be selected alternately from the Island and the Mainland, might have taken something less than a column of horribly bad English in which to say it.

No one a year or two ago would have imagined that the Hon. Edward Blake would ever visit British Columbia in the interests of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. Yet that and nothing else is now Mr. Blake's errand to this province. That he was selected to be their advocate in a very important case is perhaps the highest possible testimony that could be given to that gentleman's ability and integrity. While Mr. Blake was leader of the Opposition in Parliament he was a thorn in the company's side. He considered it his duty to oppose the Government's Pacific railway policy and he did so strenuously and uncompromisingly. But no sooner had Mr. Blake retired from the political field than the company employ him to conduct the Onderdonk arbitration case. They know that their interests are as safe in his hands as they would be in those of the Hon. J. C. Abbott or any other eminent lawyer who had supported the Government's railway policy in Parliament. They know that the profound knowledge, the great talents, and the indefatigable industry which he used in frustrating their designs in the Dominion Legislature will be quite as zealously and as faithfully employed in furthering their interests in this arbitration case. Greater confidence than this could not be placed in any man.

A Warning.

The modes of death's approaches are various, and statistics show conclusively that more persons die from diseases of the Throat and Lungs than any other. It is probable that everyone, without exception, receives vast numbers of Tubercle Germs into the system and where these germs fall upon suitable soil they start into life and develop, at first slowly, and is shown by a slight tickling sensation in the throat and if allowed to continue their ravages they extend to the lungs producing Consumption, and to the head causing Catarrh. Now all this is dangerous and if allowed to proceed will in time cause death. At the onset you must act with promptness; allowing a cold to go without attention is dangerous and may lose you your life. As soon as you feel that something is wrong with your Throat, Lungs or Nostrils, obtain a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. It will give you immediate relief.

To Excursionists.

Canadian Pacific excursion tickets will be exchanged to return over the N. P. R. R. on application at the Northern Pacific ticket office, No. 341, Government street, next door to P. O. This enables excursionists to see Puget Sound, the celebrated "Switchback" and to visit Yellowstone Park via the Palace Pullman and Dining Car route. *

CONDENSED DESPATCHES.

J. A. Swann, late treasurer of Knox county, Tenn., short $25,000, is somewhere in the East.

On Thursday, while Thos. Barton was attending his wife's funeral at Oakland, Cal., he dropped dead beside the grave.

The large new distillery and contents at Calistoga belonging to George Lange of San Francisco, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday. Loss $10,000.

Clarence T. Townsend and Wm. Keyes, charged with smuggling opium ashore from the steamer Wilmington, have been held in $1,000 bail at San Francisco.

The jury in the case of Herman J. Emerson, charged with keeping a policy shop in New York, where forger Bedelle claims to have lost $127,000, have returned a verdict of guilty.

The two Italians arrested at Wilkesbarre on suspicion of being concerned in the murder of McClure and Flanigan, have been discharged, and the police are now without a clue to the tragedy.

Young Talmage, son of the late General Manager Talmage, of the Wabash Railroad, is on trial at St. Louis for murdering a telegraph operator. He was found guilty and sentenced to 21 years imprisonment.

Four ocean steamers left New York for Europe on Wednesday morning, namely: the City of New York, the Gallia, the Trave, and the Britannic, and there is some talk of a race across the Atlantic, as the vessels left the harbor nearly at the same time.

On Wednesday afternoon the Spanish brig Almogavar was capsized by wind in New York harbor. In falling over the brig fell upon a passing tug, which was badly damaged. The brig sank. She carried no ballast which led to her capsizing so easily.

At Sparlanburg, Charleston, R. Lenn and Helen Boland were both sentenced to be hanged December 14th for the murder of Mrs. Lenn two years ago. Lenn was infatuated with the Boland woman and poisoned his wife to get her out of the way.

Capt. John Jellard, of the steamer Careuse, from Pernambucto, died in the hospital at New York on Thursday of yellow fever. The crew will be isolated. The vessel arrived at New York on Monday and safely passed quarantine, the captain sitting on a chair on deck, seemingly well.

News has been received from Columbus, Polk county, N.C., which is in the mountains away from railroad and telegraphic communication, that a riot occurred there Wednesday between Republicans and Democrats, after rival political meetings, in which a Democrat named Brown was dangerously shot, and others of both parties were wounded and battered up.

On the Bohemian flats at Minneapolis, a family of eight Bohemians sat down to supper and almost immediately after swallowing a few mouthfulls of food fell on the floor writhing, with all the symptoms of arsenical poisoning. The party was celebrating the wedding of George Martin and his bride, two of the victims. It is supposed that a rival of Martin's poisoned the food. All are very ill and may died.

Mount Vernon, Ky.—At John Robinson's circus here yesterday John Proctor put on a badge and attempted to enter the show. The chief canvass man, Wm. Parker, informed the doorkeeper, and an altercation ensued in which pistols and knives were used. Parker was fatally cut in the right side; John Bremer was shot in the head; J. B. Jones, sheriff-elect, was shot through the right shoulder, and several spectators were wounded by bullets. Proctor is under arrest.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 25.—Daniel Hand, an aged and wealthy resident of Guilford, has given to the American Missionary Association, of New York, the sum of one million dollars, to be held in trust by the association, and the interest to be devoted to the education of the colored people in the old slave states of the south. Mr. Hand, the donor, was a grocer in Charleston before the war, and being of northern sentiments was forced to fly to the north, leaving all of his property, worth about $130,000, in charge of his confidential clerk, Mr. Williams, who used the property profitably during the war, and by investments in southern pine lands became very rich. Mr. Hand's counsel advised him to seek a settlement with Williams. Mr. Williams came to New Haven and honorably paid up the original sum and interest, amounting to $648,000. This amount, with the accrued interest, forms the great bulk of the sum now donated by Mr. Hand.

The obsequies of Right Rev. Bishop Walls of the Episcopal diocese of Milwaukee, took place Thursday afternoon. The services were very impressive.

At the United States mint a large bar purporting to be gold was received from the West. It resembled in shape the ordinary bars of that precious metal, and in appearance it looked something like it, but when placed in the hands of the assayer that official decided it was spurious and of little value. A bar of gold of the same size would be worth $35,000.

trial. It is a cheerful looking room, although the iron bars at the window show also that egress, except by the door, is impossible. The petit jury room completes the list of apartments on the second floor. The third floor contains but two large rooms.

THE SUPREME COURTROOM

is situated almost exactly in the centre of the building. The room is 50 feet in length by about 36 in width. The throne is placed at the end nearest Langley street, and is constructed of California red wood, with ornamentation in walnut, Spanish cedar, and oak. Three steps lead from the floor of the courtroom to the throne. At either side is a door leading to the judge's private room, which is reached by the private staircase leading from the Bastion street entrance. The boxes for the grand and petit juries are provided with chairs similar to the ones in use in The Victoria theatre. The centre of the room is taken up by the lawyer's tables. Behind these is the prisoner's box and two long seats for the accommodation of spectators. The public will also be allowed to occupy seats in the comfortable gallery, which extends the entire width of the courtroom in the rear, and is reached by means of a short stairway leading from the main hall.

THE SECOND COURT ROOM,

which is intended to be used in the event of two cases coming up for trial at the same hour, faces on Bastion Square. The ceiling is twenty-five feet clear from the floor and is heavily corniced and finished with a splendid centre piece. This room will be fitted up with the old court room furniture. The woodwork is of native wood, beautifully grained, and the room is a model of convenience in every particular.

The entire building is well ventilated, well heated and well arranged. It is exactly what the province has long felt the need of, and too much praise cannot be given to Mr. H. Tiedeman, the architect, upon whose plans the court house has been built; Mr. S. C. Burris, the architect in charge; Messrs. Smith and Clark, the general contractors, and Mr. Geo. E. Kinsman who has carfully discharged the different duties in connection with the general superintendence of the work.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,

LOCAL BRIEFS.

The Douglas on the day of the stormy weather on Tuesday at Vancouver, was waiting to tow a scow over to Vesuvius Bay for stone sinkers and was not bound to Victoria. If she was bound to Victoria the wind would not have stopped her.

Those ladies and gentlemen taking part in the opera of "Erminie", will kindly call at Waitt's Music Store and obtain a copy of the vocal score, which has just arrived.

Mr. J. Jobson, of Cadboro Bay road, has favored this office with a couple of branches of a raspberry cane heavily laden with ripe berries, which were picked in his garden yesterday.

Through an oversight an old item referring to the R. E. confirmation services three weeks ago, was inserted in the paper yesterday.

Provincial Constable Lewis left this morning for Westminster, having in charge the two Indians, Tommy and Mundie, who were committed for trial on a charge of robbery.

At Westminster on Thursday night the thermometer registered 33° — as close as it could get to freezing.

Scarcely enough salmon is now caught in the Fraser to supply the local demand and shipments to the east have almost entirely ceased.

Look out for the new advertisement of the White House which will appear in Tuesday's issue. Special attractions for the ladies.

The Cranberry Crop.

The crop of cranberries on the Fraser this year is either lighter than usual or the Indians have not turned out in as large force as in other years. In the seasons when the berries are plentiful Mr. Vianen, of Westminster, usually receives from 500 to 800 barrels, all of which comes from the marshes near the mouth of the Fraser river. San Francisco is the best market found for these berries, the demand being large and the price always good. Mr. Vianen has filled one order for 50 barrels at $10 per barrel, but will not sell any more at that price, which is certainly very low. The British Columbia cranberry commands the highest price on the market, being acknowledged superior to all others.

LOCAL AND PROVINCIAL.

New Alaska Postoffices.

Two new postoffices have recently been established in Alaska, and bids are now being advertised for, for furnishing an occasional mail service to those offices. The names of the new offices are Unga and Afognac.

Contract Completed.

Mr. J. C. Blackett, has completed his late son's contract for the erection of the trestles and bridges on the Union Colliery Railway. It will be remembered that the late W. E. Blackett, while working on the contract, was drowned off Jack Hart's Point by the swamping of his boat.

A Seattle Failure.

James W. Smith, of the Bijou Theatre, Seattle, has filed a petition of insolvency in the district court. The chances for Smith's creditors are pretty slim, as according to the schedules the assets are only $20, while the liabilities are $23,379.

Miss Willard's Fiftieth Birthday.

The W. C. T. U. superintendents have decided to meet in San Francisco, September 28, 1889, when a grand harvest home festival will be held in honor of Miss Willard's fiftieth birthday. Work will be extended into the territories.

Minister Phelps has been instructed by the President, through Secretary Bayard to intimate to Lord Salisbury without delay, that under all circumstances the President is of the opinion that the good understanding of both countries would be promoted by a change in the head of the British legation at Washington.

Telephone Line to Comox.

Messrs. R. Dunsmuir & Sons, of the Wellington Collieries, have a party of men surveying a way for a telephone line from Departure Bay to the Union colliery at Comox. The party are now between Englishman's river and Qualicum river surveying the route. This will be a private line solely for the business convenience of the Wellington and Union collieries.

Electric Railways.

The committee have promised to report on the rival tramway proposals on Wednesday next. It is believed that, whichever scheme may be adopted, the ratepayers will have an opportunity afforded them of voting pro or con upon it. The matter is fraught with great interest and importance to the public who should be allowed to declare for or against the adoption.

What About Heaven?

Dr. Downie, who is holding a faith cure mission at the Grand Opera House, San Francisco, stated at one of his meetings that Heaven was a city fifteen hundred miles square; that in all the multitude of its inhabitants there was not one single case of sickness, and but that for lack of faith and prayer San Francisco would be equally free from it.

He Mistook the House.

Mrs. King who resides on Chatham street heard someone trying to unlock her door at a late hour last night, and suspecting robbery, summoned the police by telephone. The midnight prowler proved to be a belated devotee of the wine god who imagined he was at his own door, and was surprised and disgusted that he could not find a key-hole to fraternize with his latch key. He was aimed in the right direction and started for his home.

Funerals.

The funeral of the late Mrs. H. G. Walker will take place this afternoon from the residence of Capt. Revely, Saanich road. The funeral services will be read in St. John's Church.

The remains of the late Mr. P. Gilligan were interred yesterday morning, the services being conducted at St. Andrew's pro-Cathedral. The following gentlemen officiated as ballbearers: Joseph Dwyer, P. Everett, John Walsh, A. Gibson, W. Steele, Sr., W. Steele, Jr.

The Death at the Anthracite Mine.

A letter received from Mr. Deans who is at the Queen Charlotte anthracite mine states that his companion, Thomas Lewis, (not Shoal, as stated in yesterday's issue) died of brain fever, and was interred in the Skidgate burying ground. The deceased was a Welshman and formerly resided at Alberni. He had relatives and friends living in Nanimo. Mr. Deans took charge of the dead man's effects. In his letter he also states that in No. 2 shaft shale had been struck, and that it was thought by following it up that the anthracite would be reached. Work for the season has been discontinued, owing to the rainy weather having set in.

Cloth Peddlers.

It is stated that a few weeks ago a cloth peddler visited Alberni and succeeded in victimizing several of the settlers. In one instance Mr. G.D. Clarke purchased cloth to the extent of $45, paying $15 cash and giving his promissory note for the balance, the note being made payable at the railway express office. The cloth was bought with the distinct understanding that a tailor would follow the salesman in a few days and make up the cloth into clothes free of any charge. Needless to say, the tailor never came, and the cloth remains in bulk on Mr. Clarke's hands. He has, therefore, given notice that he will not be responsible for the payment of the note, as it was obtained from him by fraud, and has fully made up his mind that the next time he needs clothes he will patronize home industry.

A Chinese Boycott on American Goods.

The following circular has just reached Chinese merchants in New York from their home offices in Hongkong and Shanghai:

"GENTLEMEN: You are hereby notified that you are to immediately discontinue the purchase of the following articles from American sources and markets, as they are being severely boycotted by Kim Maid, by members of trades unions and other citizens. These articles are now proscribed: Petroleum, white sheeting, all kinds of American calico, watches and American fire arms, ginsing root and flour."

With the exception of a few Chinese firms in New York the above circular will have no effect, but many San Francisco firms will feel it more severely, as several of them are heavy dealers in American flour, petroleum and cotton goods.

Duncan's Station.

A very successful entertainment was given on Friday evening last in the New Hall at Duncan's Station before a large and appreciative audience, and we are informed that the proceeds will clear the debt on the organ purchased some time ago, and for which object the entertainment was given. Miss Halliday deserves every credit for the success of the affair, and it was only with a great amount of labor and perseverance that the children acquitted themselves so well in their various recitations, dialogues, and songs. It would be invidious to make comparisons. Suffice it to say the Misses Mariner, Misses Jaynes, Miss Fanny Edgson, Miss Nellie Green, Miss Lomas, Miss Duncan, Master Lomas, and Master Robert McLean completely surprized their hearers. Mrs. Maitland sang "The Cows are in the Corn," which was loudly applauded and called for an encore. Mr. Robson sang the old favorite "Tom Bowling," and for an encore "The Death of Nelson." Refreshments and dancing brought the evening to a close.

Emma Abbott Writing a Book.

Emma Abbott is writing a book, that she will call "Evenings with Great Celebrities." It will treat of personal meetings with Pope Pius IX., Baron Rothschild, Longfellow, Jay Gould, Verdi, Ouida, Gladstone, Liszt, Victor Hugo, Wagner, Bizet, Spurgeon, Wilkie Collins, Jenny Lind, Gounod, and many others.

Police Notes.

In the police court yesterday a citizen was charged with driving over Rock Bay bridge faster than the regulation pace, but the case was dismissed for want of evidence. Acting-Supt. Sheppard informed the magistrate that the boy Roscamp had been shipped on board the bark Norcross, and asked for his discharge from custody. The request was granted, his honor giving the boy a few words of advice as to his future conduct.

Outgoing Passengers.

The following passengers left for San Francisco yesterday morning by the Umatilla: L. G. McPhillips, A. E. Wilks, T. J. Cox, N. B. Greensfelder, D. B. Stevens, J. B. Cooper, T. S. Cunningham and wife, N. Layton and wife, J. A. Johnson, W. P. Sayward, M. Powers, Mrs. Plaskett, Miss Helen Good, T. Kassemeyer and wife, Mrs. Savory, E. Struven, Geo. Errington, N. McLellan, W. J. Goepel and wife, and twelve in the steerage.

Coming Events.

To-morrow night the Rochester Comedy Company open a two nights' stand at The Victoria with the roaring comedy of "Widow O'Brien." It is one long laugh from first to last, with a little bit of every line of stage business worked in. Tuesday night's bill is "Senior and Junior." The company are coming fresh from a triumphal run in Seattle, where every one speaks in the highest terms of their performances.

The Revival.

Last evening a special service was held in the Pandora street Presbyterian Church, which was well filled by those who had been awakened by Mr. Moody's earnest preaching. In the absence of the great revivalist his assistant, Mr. Studd, addressed the meeting. This morning at 9:45 a service for men only will be held in Pandora street Methodist Church, and this evening at eight a grand union meeting in The Victoria theatre. All are invited.

Boom of Logs Ashore.

On Wednesday afternoon, during the heavy gale, a steamer was observed towing a boom of logs in the Gulf opposite Qualicum. The steamer struggled for several hours against the storm in an endeavor to save the boom; but the action of the waves at length caused it to break and the logs now strew the beach from Qualicum to French creek. When the storm abated the settlers went out in their boats and secured the greater portion of the logs. The boom is reported to have belonged to the Victoria sawmill.

Better Than Clairvoyancy.

On hearing the rumor that the C. P. R. had got hold of the Ainsworth charter and would immediately commence work on the road, real estate owners of Revelstoke made a revaluation of their property. R. E. Lemon now considers himself worth $200,000, J. Fred. Hume a quarter of a million, William Cowen $75,000, John Stone $50,000, Fred. Fraser $25,000, Abrahamson Brothers $65,000, W. M. Brown $165,000, Fred. Hobbs $75, and Jack Oats $80, worse than nothing. John McLeod has no real estate in Revelstoke, but expects to knock out a few thousands if Nelson booms in the spring.—Donald Truth.

C. Green, Dr. S. G. Green, Mr. Rockhilli, Mr. Sattorel, Captain Watton, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and four children, Mr. Many Karvin, and seventy-four Chinese in the steerage.

An Impromptu Musicale.

After the performance at The Victoria on Thursday night, a select party of ladies and gentlemen gathered in the parlors of the Driard, which for an hour or more resounded with sweet music. Prof. Sharpe, of this city, was present and his piano recital was not the least pleasant feature of the evening. Mr. T. L. Cunningham, a prominent member of the Glasgow Stock Exchange, now a guest at the Driard, also contributed to the pleasure of all by the rendition of a number of beautiful selections on a golden flute, an instrument which in the old country cost the owner a cool 100 guineas. Mr. J. L. Woods, of Toronto, also proved himself a finished vocalist and the impromptu musicale proved a decided treat to all who had the pleasure of listening to the delightful music, which made the time fly all too quickly away.

THE LAW COURTS.

Complete Description of the Exterior and Interior of the Building.

The Edifice Handsome in Appearance and Convenient in Arrangement—An Excellent Lithograph of the Structure.

With this number of THE COLONIST we present to our readers an accurate illustration of the new provincial law courts, now almost finished, which occupy a commanding position on Bastion square, attracting the attention and admiration of each new arrival almost as soon as he steps from the boat which brings him to the Queen City of the West. The sound of the hammer is no longer heard within the walls of the handsome edifice; the painter and grainer have almost completed their work and to-day the new law courts stand forth in all their beauty, a lasting monument to the progress which the province is making in architecture as in everything else, a model in convenience of good arrangement, and a public building of which every citizen of Victoria or resident of the Province may well be proud. In the erection of the edifice, the builders have been bound down to no conventional style of architecture or arrangement. The requirements and convenience of the various departments have been first considered in every detail and the building planned to meet the requirements of the officials and of the public. It has been built to supply a want long felt and not to display the beauties of any school of design or to illustrate the fancy of any architect. The result is highly satisfactory in every way.

THE EXTERIOR

appearance is massive in the extreme. The building has a frontage of about 100 feet on Langley street, with a depth of 120 on Bastion street, on the one side, and Chancery lane on the other. The Bastion square front contains the main public entrance, and from the streets leading from the steamer landing the best view of the new building can be obtained. The edifice is three stories in height, built satisfactorily on a foundation of solid stone three feet in thickness. The walls of the very best quality of brick; the first storey 3½ bricks in thickness, the second 3, and the third 2½. The entire brickwork is coated with cement, which gives the building the apparance of being constructed of cut stone. Solidity is the characteristic of the building. The exterior would in fact be called sombre were it not for the graceful beauty of the large, deep windows, some with circular copping and some massive and square, which, with the side buttresses, the round Norman towers at the corners on Langley street, the heavy cornicing, and the complete finish of the entire edifice, makes it both graceful and substantial.

The entrance on Langley street is through an open porch 36 by 15 feet, supported by heavy square pillars, and containing convenient rooms on the two stories above. The roof in the centre of the main building is several feet higher than the walls, made a necessity by the lofty ceilings of the court rooms below.

Two small square towers jut from the main building on the Bastion street side, and while increasing the handsome appearance of the building and serving as buttresses to increase its safety, give entrance to the private doors leading to the rooms set apart for the use of the judges, and the sheriff and the superintendent of police.

On Bastion Square the public entrance is reached by a substantial flight of steps, the entrance being set well in from the frontage line of the building. Entering the court house through Langley street doors the visitor finds himself on vestibule. Before him, in the centre of the building, a labyrinth of stairs lead to the court-room and offices above. At the right are the registrars' offices, three rooms connecting the one with the other. Each is provided with a substantial vault and burglar and fireproof safe doors, lavatory and toilet conveniences and all the modern office furniture and equipments. The offices are well-lighted, the windows looking out in Chancery lane, and are also supplied with both gas and electric light. The wainscotting is native wooded, grained in oak finish.

At the left of the entry is a large room which will probably be used by the caretaker of the building. A short flight of steps lead from it to the cellar, where is to be found the Eureka steam apparatus by which the entire building is heated. A side door also leads from the caretaker's room to the private stairway by which the judges reach their room through the Bastion street entrance.

Passing to the Bastion square entrance on the ground floor, we find at the left the entrance to which is a light, airy room, about thirty feet square, the ceiling twenty-one feet clear from the floor. The windows overlook Chancery lane, and light for sessions is provided, both gas and electricity. The judge's throne is neatly and plainly finished in California redwood and cedar. The judge's desk and the desk for the clerk of the court are also finished in the same beautiful woods. A heavy railing encloses the lawyers tables and the jury box, and outside of it are conveniently arranged seats for spectators who may desire to be present during the sessions of the court. Fronting on Bastion square and entered by a door opening into the court-room, is the county court judge's private office, neatly arranged and tastefully but plainly furnished.

On the opposite side of the corridor are the fitted in exactly the same manner as the county court room. The woodwork of both is of native woods, the wainscotting five feet in height, grained in oak and ash finish.

Adjoining the chancery chambers is the room for the use of witnesses, lighted during the day by means of a large window looking out on the Bastion square entrance.

THE FIRST STOREY.

Ascending the handsome stairway, which is broken about half way up, making the ascent far less wearisome, the first floor vestibule is reached. At the Bastion street side are situated the judges' chambers, four in number, finished in walnut throughout and having toilet rooms with every convenience attached. Electric call bells communicate with the messenger's room.

At the left of the vestibule are the rooms for the use of the registrar of the county court and the registrar of the supreme court, fitted with handsome desks, vaults, etc., and with lavatories attached.

Ascending to the second storey, the seven large and well appointed rooms on the Bastion street side are found to be those devoted to the use of the attorney-general and legal counsel. They are admirably fitted up in every detail. On the opposite side of the building is the library and the reading room, where the lights of the law discard the garments of every day life and don their sombre robes before appearing in court. Adjoining the library is another registrar's office and next to it the room in which the prisoners are kept secure while awaiting OBSERVATIONS.

Police Constable Thomas, No. 5, step to the front. Correct. You are a brave and level-headed man. Why? Listen and I will tell you why. I will tell you several whys. There was a runaway on Government street the other day and you were at it. And while you were there there was an old Indian woman—a very old woman—with wrinkled face and rickety legs, that slid out of somewhere and tried to get across the street, and just then there was a bang and a clatter, and for about three seconds that poor old woman was in the most imminent danger of being knocked down and smashed into smithereens by that aforesaid runaway horse. For the old woman was paralysed with fright. The few loafers that stood around, waited with curiosity and expectancy to see her smashed and not one man had pluck enough to put the kibosh on the brute—not one man but you. You did it someway, Thomas. You just slid out and got that old klootchman on one side, and in a second you had the horse by the bridle, and in another second or so he was standing perfectly still. That's all you did, Thomas. You did your duty and you did it bravely and well. And I am proud of you and take this opportunity of saying so, as I noticed the little incident. It is worthy of some recognition.

In all human beings there is a morbid desire to know about the worst side of man. They profess to decry it; it is a feeling that they deprecate in others, but it is there just the same. This accounts for sensational newspapers. If the public did not demand sensations in newspapers, publishers would not give them space. The morality of such proceedings may not strike the observant reader as of a very high order, but some daily paper publishers don't generally care so much for that as they do for money. So the morbid newspaper reporter hunts for scandals, for elopements, for embezzlements, for the skeletons in family closets too often, for facts that will cause misery and tears when told in cold type. The good deeds of old George Smith pass unnoticed, unless George "works" a reporter to write him up, but if George elopes with the servant girl, or if, in a moment of weakness, he commits some one of those crimes which the best of us are prone to, in his whole exemplary life, the pitiful spectacle of a ruined home, a broken-hearted wife, the tears which stream from his saddened eyes, pass for naught, and the gleeful ghoul of the daily press waxes merry as he tells in frisky English the story of old George's amours and final flight.

It was perhaps because of this that the bravery of a mere policeman was left unsung. If P. C. Thomas had smashed a man's nose or broken his head with a club, the papers could not have devoted space enough to it. Because he accepted one of the chances that a policeman agrees to accept when he dons the blue uniform, his heroism is ignored.

How little we appreciate true heroism anyway. In these days of fraud and deceit, of cant and hypocrisy, when religion and the church serves thousands only as a cloak to mask the grovelling meanness and wickedness and avarice of their nature, we see so little of heroism that we fail to recognize it. The hero is always a quiet unassuming personage. He does not stand and beat upon his shield and declare his valor to the four winds of heaven as he did in the days of old. And yet the world contains more nobility to-day than it ever did. Heroes every day go to their graves in these days of matter-of-fact prose, and we see them pass away with scarcely any thought. The every-day hero: the engine driver who dies with his hand on the lever rather than desert his post; the fireman who risks his life and limb in the fire and smoke, are dismissed from our minds with the comments of the daily paper: "The engineer was killed, the firemen worked well." We immortalize a Wellington, a Florence Nightingale, a Grace Darling, because their deeds were done before an admiring world. But we scarcely notice the unpretentious heroes that are in our very midst. Fortunately men and women that have in them the stuff from which heroes are made, do not live for popular applause.

Mrs. Van Luven is dead. The daily press says so and it says little more. A soul that was as grand, as noble, as brave, as heroic, as Christ-like as any that ever lived has passed to its reward. Her mission is finished. She was sent to us to show us by her life a glimpse of the real religion that Christ came to teach, the religion of deeds not doctrine. Mrs. Van Luven lived in New Westminster. She was a quiet, home-loving body with a husband and children that she loved as only a woman can. Near the city on the mainland that terrible scourge, the smallpex, made its appearance and people fled from its unfortunate victims for fear that the plague should strike them. One family was suffering from the dread disease. No one was there to care for them, to smooth down the pillows, to give them cool drinks, to see that they took the medicine the doctor left. Everyone shrank from these people in all the agonies of loathsome disease. Everyone but Mrs. Van Luven. Her compassionate heart heard their unspoken cry for help. She went to them. She was by them night and day, sleeping and waking, to care for them tenderly as a mother, to save their lives. But she gave her life for theirs. As they began to feel the touch of returning health, she felt the accursed disease running hot through her veins. She was worn and weak with watching and the weary work of the sick room. She knew that she must die. Die without even kissing her loved ones goodbye—without folding her children to her breast in one last, loving embrace. She was too heroic to think of risking their lives to gratify the hunger of her heart. A little time and the struggle was over. She had passed from the known into the great unknown. With her death the world lost a nature great in all that constitutes true greatness; Heaven welcomed one in whose heart God had outlined an angel. Her trial and her noble work had made the Divine sketch complete.

This is the month when select parties of young men and maids go out into the woods to gather autumn leaves, and the forest primeval resounds with such utterances as: "Oh, aren't they lovely!" "Johnnie, dear, do try and get me that branch away up there!" "Mine are all yellow!" "Where did you get yours?" "Is that maple, or what is it?" And on the following day they discover what it is; and Miss Jones is not at home to Mr. Smith when he calls. On the contrary, she is up in her room poulticing a nose like the pendant gills of a turkey rooster, for color and size; and Smith retires disconsolately to his own chateau and baths an enlarged vermillion ear in borax water, and profanely questions the wisdom of nature in creating poison ivy.
